War Or Peace In Europe Lies In Hands Of Hitler And Simon, In Conference Behind Closed Doors

(Copyright 1935 by International News Service)

London, March 25—(INS)—Behind closed doors two men talked today in Berlin and 400,000,000 Europeans waited tensely for results which may mean peace or war.

As Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of Britain came face to face with Hitler for the first time today, Europe agreed it was the most momentous meeting since the Germans put under the Treaty of Versailles, the signature which they have now repudiated.

This was almost the only point on which Europe agreed on this most grave day in history, as James Louis Garvin, editor of the London Sunday Observer, calls it.

Three little bright points appeared at the last minute on the gloomy horizon.

Hungary announced she did not at this moment intend to follow Germany's example and rearm openly, which would have meant war in the Balkans.

Rumania denied a report she was mobilizing.

Foreign minister Koki Hirota of Japan announced there were no negotiations for a Japanese-German alliance but that Germany had declared she would never demand return of her Pacific Island colonies, mandated to Japan.

On the other hand, dark clouds rolled up on Germany's north and southeastern borders. From Vienna Special Envoy Franz Von Papen hastened to Berlin and it is believed he came to tell Hitler the time is ripe to demand a plebiscite to give the Nazis there a chance.

Against such a demand Mussolini's army, a million strong, is flocking now to the colors and one of Simon's hardest tasks will be to find a way to keep the bayonets of Italy's dictator from clashing with those of Germany.

At the same time, in a corner of tiny Lithuania is a smoldering spark more immediately threatening to Europe's powder barrel than any other.

There the German majority in the town of Memel is clamoring for a return to Germany and at this very moment a verdict is expected from Kovno in the court martial of 123 Nazis for a conspiracy to effect a "putsch" against Lithuanian rule.

The Lithuanian prosecutors asked death for five Germans accused of murdering a member of their secret society who had turned traitor. If the court decrees death or confirms any of the long term prison sentences asked against prominent Nazis, public feeling in Germany will flame.

RURAL PASTORS TO MEET AT U. K.

Problems of Rural Churches Theme of Short Course to Be Sponsored by University

EXPECT 100 TO ATTEND

A short course for town and country pastors, to be sponsored jointly by the University and the Kentucky Rural Church council, will be given at the University April 29 to May 4, according to an announcement by Dr. W. D. Nicholas, head of the department of farm economics in the College of Agriculture.

Problems of the rural church will be the general nature of the discussions. Daily sessions will be held in the livestock pavilion on the Experiment Station farm while night sessions will be in Memorial hall. Four denominations in the state have already offered to finance the attendance of over 70 pastors and Dr. Nicholas said he expected a daily attendance of at least 100.

Prominent Kentucky pastors and specialists in religious work throughout the nation will speak at the various sessions. Among them are Dr. E. C. Cameron, Indianapolis, and Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, of Richmond, Va., nationally known specialists in the rural church; Prof. George W. Campbell, Cincinnati, specialist in church music, worship and recreation; Dr. T. C. Ecton, Lexington; Dr. George S. Watson, Louisville; Dr. John Lowe, Louisville, executive secretary of the Council of Churches; Dr. T. W. Tindler, North Middletown, Ky.; the Rt. Rev. H. P. GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM RECEIVES METEORITE

David M. Young, curator of the University geological museum, has collected a series of meteorites that have fallen in Kentucky.

The most recent of this collection is one that fell near Cynthiana, and the force with which it fell imbedded it about 13 inches. Others come from Cumberland Falls, Williamstown, and many other parts of the state. This will be a representative collection of all the meteorites that have fallen in Kentucky in the last few decades.

St. Xavier Wins National Crown At Chicago Meet

St. Mel, Chicago, Bows to Louisville Team in Finals of Catholic Tourney

Chicago, March 25—(INS)—St. Xavier High school of Louisville, Ky., is the 1935 National Catholic Interscholastic basketball champion. The Kentucky lads won the title here last night by defeating St. Mel of Chicago 29 to 24.

The Indians from the St. Francis Mission of South Dakota, won third place by whipping St. Mary's of Anderson, Ind., 33 to 15.

St. Xavier became an early favorite by piling up a first round score of 77 points, a new tournament record, and continued to play superb basketball throughout the tournament. It is the Kentuckian's second national championship. Back in 1926 an unheralded team won the title.

Last night St. Xavier and St. Mel displayed almost equal ability. But for a five-minute stretch in the third period the Louisville lads played a brand of ball seldom seen in prep circles. At the beginning of the five minutes St. Xavier trailed 14 to 12. At the end of the brilliant drive St. Xavier was ahead 22 to 14. It was that superb five minutes that won St. Xavier the title.

UK EMPLOYMENT BOOK PREPARED

"Bargains in Brains," Featuring Qualifications of Commerce College Grads, Is Ready for Distribution

Members of the 1935 Commerce Employment Association, who are candidates for graduation in June from the University, will present themselves to prospective employers through the issue of their salesmanship booklet, "Bargains in Brains." This booklet, published by members of the association at the close of each school year, has just come from the press to declare to personnel managers, employment offices and "Big Business" in general that 48 graduates of the University of Kentucky in the June class have united in the student-maintained Commerce Employment association to present themselves as "Bargains in Brains."

The publication is a 16-page booklet, attractively edited and with a cover design executed by Miss Anna Rebekah Van Meter, Jackson, Ky., a member of the group. It contains the picture, age, weight, height, chief interests, campus activities, experiences and address of each of the 48 members, and is a printed testimony of their character, capacity, training and experience.

This is the third edition of the booklet and through it 177 students have already secured positions. Lloyd Averitt, instructor in economics at the University, is the secretary and advisor to the Commerce Employment association.

Philharmonic Orchestra Gives Last Program

Mrs. Rose Urbach Is Guest Artist As Musical Season Closes

The University of Kentucky Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Carl A. Lampert, presented the final musicale of the season Sunday afternoon in Memorial hall.

Rose Urbach, mezzo soprano, of Paris, was the guest artist for the concert Sunday, and for her group of selections, Miss Mildred Lewis played the accompaniments. Mrs. Urbach has been referred to as a contralto and was so noted on the program but owing to the very clear high notes she is able to sing an unusual range, as was evident in her number "The Hills of Gruzia" by Mednikoff, it is probably a bit more accurate to place her as a mezzo soprano. Mrs. Urbach has been invited to sing in the production of the "Messiah" which will be given in Lexington Thursday, April 25, and she has accepted.

The Philharmonic orchestra gave a delightful program. The first movement from the G Minor Symphony by Mozart was the opening selection. Inviting the first violin to give the two themes with which the great composer worked out the symphony, Professor Lampert gave a brief explanation and the pleasure in enjoying the selection was increased. "Traumerl and Romanza" by Schumann, arranged for strings by John Lewis, Jr., was a beautiful selection and gave the audience an opportunity to appreciate again the fact that the music department of the University, through its head, Professor Lampert, is headed by a faculty club team. R. D. McIntyre, chairman of the music committee to whose efforts and knowledge of what is best in music much of the success of the season is due, was congratulated on the beauty and merit of the musical entertainments arranged for Sunday vesper hours.

After the musicale, the orchestra, Miss Lewis, Mrs. Urbach, and Professor Lampert were guests of the faculty club tea. R. D. McIntyre, chairman of the music committee to whose efforts and knowledge of what is best in music much of the success of the season is due, was congratulated on the beauty and merit of the musical entertainments arranged for Sunday vesper hours.

U.K. Students Perform Own Casting At School Foundry

If you happen to pass through the drive back of Mechanical hall this afternoon about 2 o'clock, you will see something you have probably never seen before unless you are an engineering student. Although before, there is a foundry located behind Mechanical hall where castings are made of iron. The casting is performed by students of the College of Engineering under the supervision of N. R. Sturgeon.

Coke is used in melting the iron and a bed of it is placed in the cupola to heat it. After the cupola is hot, about 500 pounds of iron is put in and 75 pounds of coke added. Air is blown in to increase the amount of oxygen in the cupola and cause the iron to melt, as it would not reach a temperature high enough to melt it if it were not for the extra oxygen. After the iron has melted it is poured into a large ladle, called the mixing ladle, from which it goes into smaller ladles, and thence into the molds. When the iron is first poured into the mixing ladle from the cupola, there

House 'Silver Bloc' Seeks To Block Move Of Senate By Seeking House Approval Of Thomas' Silver 'Rider'

Washington, March 25—(INS)—The House "Silver Bloc" moved today to foil the "plot" of Senate leaders by seeking House acceptance of the Thomas silver "rider" to the $4,890,000,000 Work-Relief bill.

The Thomas amendment admittedly was accepted by Senate leaders to break the jam and obtain passage of the Work-Relief bill. It was their plan to knock it out in conference with the House.

But the Silverites were called in to conference today with leaders proposing to stage a fight in the House for acceptance of the silver amendment.

This coup, if it succeeds, would either force President Roosevelt to accept the silver proposals or again open up the Work-Relief fight in the Senate.

Rep. John A. Martin (D) of Colorado, as unofficial chairman, called the House "Silver Bloc" into conference to make a final decision.

Meantime, Chairman Buchanan (D) of Texas of the Appropriations committee, in charge of the bill, disclosed that he planned to promptly ask the House to send the measure to conference.

Unless a new filibuster develops or the Silverites win, the gigantic appropriation measure, designed to put 3,500,000 unemployed persons to work, may reach President Roosevelt's desk late this week.

The Thomas silver "rider" requires coinage of silver bullion at $1.29 an ounce, reissuance of silver certificates, and makes discretionary use of silver in settling foreign trade balances and sale of gold and silver.

"This is the last chance for silver," said Martin. "If the House allows the silver amendment to be stricken out, silver is done for in this session."

"I propose that the House accept the silver amendment before the works bill goes to conference. If we don't do that, we may as well lay down and quit on silver in the House."

"The Thomas amendment is conservative. It would put about $350,000,000 new currency into circulation. It is evident from the Senate debate, that the leaders intended to strike the amendment out in conference."

Representative Rice (D) of Texas joined Martin in the movement. Other Silverites active in stirring a House fight included Reps. White (D) of Idaho, Murdock (D) of Utah, Werner (D) of South Dakota and Scrugham (D) of Nevada.

Other senate amendments to the bill were said by House leaders to be generally satisfactory.

WRITER'S CRAMPS

The efforts on the part of the Registrar's office to speed up registration at the beginning of this last semester were, to say the least, commendable. Their cooperation with the Student Council, Interfraternity Council, and the Kernel were duly appreciated by all concerned with the exasperating system. There are, however, several changes yet to be made before the University system of registration can be truthfully termed efficient and effective in so far as a saving of time is concerned.

A reminder of the old registration days was exceptionally annoying to the student registering for the current semester. It was the clinging to the old plan of having the student sign, countless numbers of times, his name, date of birth, et cetera. Each of these little cards of information was labeled to go to seemingly every department from the office of every dean down to the janitor of every building. And why? By the time the students have filled in the third or fourth page, they are either so tired of writing their name, or are suffering so from writer's cramps that they make a mark similar to that of a child of three. The cards, when sent to their various destinations are, as a result of this factor, about as useful to the department as an empty ink bottle.

The Kernel suggest that since the University goes to the expense of publishing a student directory that it be compounded in a more complete fashion, more accurately edited, published at an earlier date each semester, and serve as an efficient and certainly a more dimensionally convenient source of information to the departments demanding such student information. By utilizing the directory, the entering student will be required to fill out approximately two or three information blanks about himself, whereas, in the past, the number has been overwhelming. This will assure the Registrar that all writing will be legible, the printing bill will be decidedly lower, and less time will be required at the beginning of each semester for registration.

ARE WE CONCERNED?

While the world becomes more and more involved in an extremely dangerous situation, the people of the United States sit by, apparently ignorant of the fact that inertia prevails their own nation will be caught in the throes of the feeling of unrest sweeping the world today. Germany has renounced the Versailles treaty and is remobilizing; France holds a large army in readiness, and lengthens the time of compulsory service, resentful of the attitude of her old rival; Italy masses troops at home and abroad; England maintains the mightiest navy in the world; Japan, the mighty representative of the orient, lies in readiness; Russia has the largest standing army seen in the last decade, and the Balkans seethe internally.

The world stands as a giant powder box, needing but a single spark to set it into a raging conflict, the like of which the earth has never experienced. International political intrigues doubtless abound: secret treaties and alliances even more dangerous and far-reaching in their consequences than those which it has been disclosed preceded the last world conflict, are being formulated even today.

Meanwhile, the majority of the populace of the United States, the "best half-educated nation in the world," pays far too little attention to the international situation today. Its minds, if open at all, are swayed by propaganda.

STUDENT OPINION

Dear Editor:

In the student opinion column last Friday "W.H.W." writes that the existence of cavalry at the University of Kentucky would add much to the popularity of the Blue Grass section. It also would add to the student-drawing power of the University. While the latter factor may not be as positive in drawing students to the University as other attractions, it would play an important part.

A polo team would be possible. Polo is becoming a prominent intercollegiate sport in the eastern and northern schools, as well as in the far West.

W. H. W. seems to think that the riders would be unable to control highly nervous thoroughbreds when the least unusual occurrence "would throw the thoroughbred into such a frenzy that even an experienced jockey would find it difficult not to be unseated."

Perhaps W. H. W. forgets that when he came to the University he came to gain a broader knowledge of English, mathematics or whatever he was interested in. The purpose of the cavalry is to teach students to ride just as certain branches of study at the University teach students English, mathematics and other subjects.

Sincerely,
E. S.

Dear Editor:

Quoting from a letter written by the president of our University, appearing in the March 19 issue of The Kernel, "My only regret is that the students do not know the many things which The University of Kentucky does."

If University officials are concerned with the students of the University knowing its many and varied functions, whose existence the writer recognizes even if he is not thoroughly acquainted with them, some effort should be made to acquaint them with these functions. They should at the same time be made to recognize the outstanding departments and instructors present in the school.

The writer has good reason to believe that nine students out of ten, if asked to name the various departments whose work is of service to the general public, would be unable to do so. Many students do not know that an extension department is maintained by the University.

This leads to one answer to the question, "Why the lack of interest in the University manifest by the people of the state?" If the students of the University do not know their school, how can those not so closely connected with it know it?

Squirrel Food

Some of these days our two readers are going to get all boiled up over our ravings concerning Lepere and what then, Little Man? ...The week-end was very uneventful so far as we were concerned...Didn't even go to the Ohio dance...I heard that it was classed among the better dances of the year...Some of the laddies came up this morning and are still commenting on a little fellow Mountaineer of ours...It seems that her name was Underwood...The boys said she was rather keen...J. D. Haggard seemed to be especially interested...as usual...Your editor, Sunny Day, and your correspondent dashed off Sunday night to see "The West Point of the Air"...Now both of us have the flying fever...We were rather surprised to see that Sunny was not courting the attractive Bettie Bosworth Sunday night...But the red head gave a very satisfactory explanation...He says that a date on Friday, and two on Saturday should call for a change on the part of the young lady...We were also a bit surprised to see Signy Madd Best rambling around looking sorta' glum...Yea' he was alone...It seems that his big moment, Conner Dawson, dashed off to her home in the great metropolis of Owensville for the week-end...So here we go:

The Rose of the Week

Goes to Tridelt Elizo Barbioux...Her popularity throughout her three years at the University continues to maintain its ever high level...She's the sponsor of the Pershing Rifles, crack drill unit...She is numbered among the better dancers of the school...And she seems to be okay.

Shall We Tell 'Em Eli-o?

And Barbioux again...On several occasions during the past few weeks several young gentlemen have asked us "Just who is Barbioux's big moment this spring?"...They go further to ask, "Does she still feel the same way about Sigalph Alf Eckles as she did last spring?"...We hesitate to make a statement concerning our views on this matter...We refer the curious to the little lady in question.

Why not a course, required of all entering freshmen, designed to acquaint the new student with the functions and services rendered by the school? If there is not room for such a course in the curriculum, why not revise the present form of matriculation lecture and develop it so that it will give the student a knowledge of the services rendered by the University to the state and nation at large? Certainly it could serve no better purpose.

The writer is observant of the present methods of advertising the University, but considers them insufficient, and a comprehensive Radio program and articles in state papers concerning phases of its work serve to inform the people of the state of some of its functions, but miss that vital unit for promotion of the interests of the University—the individual student.

One more matter—a pet urge of the writer and one which is indirectly connected with the foregoing substance of the letter. Why not some means of identifying the University to the passing tourist? Nine out of ten do not know what the "group of buildings facing South Limestone" constitute and are forced to ask what they are or "Where is the University of Kentucky?" One would be tempted to go so far as to put up a huge electric sign which would identify our largest institution of state learning to the passerby. This may sound "Huey Longish," but we must admit that the Kingfish has put the state university of his native province "on the map" by his advertising methods. Who knows, maybe we need a "Kingfish"?

It Must Be Nice

There are some reports from the Kappa Sigma lodge that Sam Warren recently purchased two new automobiles...It seems that Sammy dashed off to Louisville and purchased a new car...Then on his return from the Falls City he journeyed to a downtown dealer and relinquished his purchase on another auto...The brothers said he completely forgot about the first purchase. What's on your mind, Sam?

Two Birds With One Stone, Eh Hank?

From the Sigalph mansion some of the brothers sends us word that the O. D. K. convention was not the only attraction for Hank McCown in Cincinnati last week-end...The other attraction besides the convention was a young lady... "Betty" is her name...

The spring dances at Vanderbilt are claiming their share of Kentucky coeds...Tridelt Ritchie Barker was among the chosen last week...and next week-end Adelaide Eubanks will journey to Nashville to attend the Vandy festivities.

The Prof. Did Not Know Monday morning a young gentleman attended one of his classes with a bottle of Bock beer...As the class was about to begin...there was a familiar "poop" as the bottle top flew skyward...Needless to say, the forementioned young gentleman was a bit embarrassed about the situation which brought an uproar from the class.

Aw, Now Algie

A report has come to us that Leslie "Algie" Scott has a girl in Louisville...It is reported that Algie will leave today to see this young lady...and furthermore, he will stay until Saturday when he will return with the Journalism class.

Betty Boyd says she is planning to get a permanent wave...We've been disillusioned...And all the time we thought that those curly tresses were natural.

In conclusion we say "Thanks pal" to our respected contemporary, Joe Jordan, for our bit of appreciated publicity in Saturday's Lexington Leader.

LITERARY

Conducted by DOROTHY WHALEN

May I remind you that all contributions for the March contest will gladly be received and same situation will continue until the end of said month. I know that some of you can write and I'm leaving it up to you to decide whether you can afford to keep it from the public eye.

April tenth is the dead-line for all Chi Delta Phi material, and, as I've said before, the material is to be handed in to any active member of Chi Delta Phi or to this column. Good luck to you who are sincerely working toward this worthy goal.

To Judith

I love to dream of future days
And build air castles high.
I love to sing romantic lays
And follow with glad sighs.

I dream with carefree glee,
My rainbows paint the skies.
And why not dream forever so—
I'm dreaming in your eyes.

Lost Love

The sunset of my lost love is fading,
Painted by the cruel hand of fate,
Changing with the waning of my hope,
Constrained by cruel custom's cutting chains
Which bind, confine, and torture me;
With sabers drawn and whipping fast,
Etching in the name of futile fate
My soul's twilight in colors of flame,
Delusive of the blood but drawn from there—
From its life blood. So thus becomes
My throbbing heart a painted tomb,
A lustrous comet-torch of dying love.

—THORNELL WARWICK TWYMAN

In Renaissance

Historians call it rebirth,
The renaissance of hope,
When souls that lost their lure—
The souls that plunged to dark—
Remembered only former things,
Lost the hope that gave him birth,
And smoldered in the Deep Dark Age
Of broken dreams and shattered hearts—
When hopeless souls are born anew,
And bring the dreamland of the child
Into the kingdom of the man.

A child, I flew the wings of fancy,
Knew no darkening cloud above me,
Believed that everlasting kindness
Would bring everlasting good,
Loved the story of a Santa—
Saw he lived in hearts I loved—
Liked to listen to my elders
Show me golden deeds to do,
Travelled long a gleaming highway

To the hoped-for age of man,
Planted feet on my ideas,
Even hoped some day to meet her
Who had shaped her heart like mine,
Saw myself a nation-builder,
Waiting for my chance to build,
Though such things as these were sacred,
Gathered from the field of God.

Then there burst the golden fancy
As I reached the age of twenty,
Manhood found me deeply wanting
In the things I'd hoped to build,
Plans I laid were fading from me—
Into catch me and you have me,
Into schemes of man-made fiber,
Into stone and brick and mortar,
Into ghosts of slight resemblance
To the things that went before,
To the dreams of early childhood,
To the Galahad of knighthood—
Only ghosts of laughing mockery,
Tearing down the things I built,
Leaving heart and soul exhausted.

But of late I've grown a little;
Now my eye can pierce the shadows,
Once again my dreamland beckons
Leads me on to golden battles,
Once again there stretches onward
Ready harvest for the servant—
Only now the fields are round me,
Night and day I travel through them.

Now my fairies keep me thinking,
Pointing on to cooling fountains,
Building round me growing gardens,
Moving grounds for my cathedrals,
Now I listen to the music
Caught on harpstrings in my youth,
I made my plans in early childhood,
Now in Renaissance I build.

Anderson Silverman Addresses Society

More than 200 members and guests of the Lexington branch of the American Chemical Society heard Dr. Anderson Silverman, head of the department of chemistry at the University of Pittsburgh, speak on "Glass, an Indispensable Factor in Modern Civilization," at a recent meeting in Kastle Hall.

According to Doctor Silverman, glass has been known for more than 5,000 years and historical records show that Egypt was the first to use the substance.

With the aid of lantern slides, Doctor Silverman illustrated the various processes in the making of plate, optical, and colored glass and told of the many uses of glass today.

Dr. O. J. Stewart, of the chemistry department, introduced the speaker. April 15 is the date set for the next meeting of the local society.

There's something about a Chesterfield —

There's one thing I especially like about Chesterfields—entirely aside from the fact that it's a milder cigarette—and I've heard a number of people say the same thing... While I'm smoking Chesterfield I never get little crumbs of tobacco in my mouth—the tobacco doesn't spill out and that adds a lot to my pleasure of smoking them... I notice more and more of my friends smoke Chesterfields.
